Cayuga Street at the corner of Seneca St.,
in Ithaca

This Saturday, Congressional candidate Jeff Miller will be in Ithaca to talk about national and regional issues in the 24th Congressional district. Miller is the Democratic challenger to Republican Sherwood Boehlert. The district includes all of Tompkins County except the City and Town of Ithaca and the Town of Danby. All are welcome, free of charge.

Jeff Miller is Associate Professor of Communication Arts at Utica College, where he has taught communication, public speaking, broadcasting and film since 1997. He has also taught at SUNY IT, Canisius College and the University of Buffalo. In 2002 Miller was recognized as an exemplary role model for students and an ally for women's empowerment. He has also worked as a press aide for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Jeff Miller opposes efforts such as the USA Patriot Act to erode personal liberties and privacy. He believes that reproductive choice must be a fundamental right and supports Roe v. Wade and greater access to reproductive health services. Further, Miller supports greater diversity of ownership and opinion in local media markets, so citizens can be fully informed and engaged within a vibrant marketplace of ideas.

On the war in Iraq, Jeff Miller recently said, "The invasion and occupation of Iraq has cost too much, both in lives lost and dollars spent, and has diverted attention and resources away from the fight against Al Qaeda.... I support greater renewed cooperation with the international community and once again taking the lead in supporting human rights and democracy abroad and reducing the threat of weapons of mass destruction worldwide."
